

Chinese, Kenyan scientists pledge collaboration to fight infectious diseases

Scientists from China and Kenya on Tuesday pledged to establish a platform for sharing knowledge and expertise to boost the war against infectious diseases. The scientists, who spoke at an inaugural Sino-Kenyan symposium on infectious diseases, said joint research, training and technology transfer is key to enhancing prevention and management of ailments caused by pathogens. Juliette Ongus, an associate professor at Jomo Kenyatta University of Agriculture and Technology (JKUAT) that host the SAJOREC, said Kenya should leverage on cooperation with China in biomedical research to help reduce the burden of infectious diseases. http://www.xinhuanet.com/english/2019-05/07/c_138041044.htm
